For further details on the applicable time limits and requirements of the elected Offices, see Volume II of the PCT Applicant's Guide.

The applicant's attention is drawn to Article 33(5), which provides that the criteria of novelty, inventive step and industrial applicability described in Article 33(2) to (4) merely serve the purposes of international preliminary examination and that "any Contracting State may apply additional or different criteria for the purposes of deciding whether, in that State, the claimed inventions is patentable or not" (see also Article 27(5)). Such additional criteria may relate, for example, to exemptions from patentability, requirements for enabling disclosure, clarity and support for the claims.

III. Non-establishment of opinion

Claims 25-33 relate to subject-matter considered by this Authority to be covered by the provisions of Rule 67.1(iv) PCT. Consequently, no opinion will be formulated with respect to the industrial applicability of the subject-matter of these claims (Article 34(4)(a)(i) PCT).

V. Reasoned statement

Reference is made to the following document:

D1: US-A-3 963 729

Novelty

The present subject matter may be considered as a novel selection, in which the specific pamoate acid addition salt has been selected from the general teaching of organic acid addition salts disclosed in D1.

Claims 1-33 fulfil the requirements of Article 33(2) PCT.

Inventive step

A novel selection is only considered inventive over the closest prior art when the selection leads to an effect which could not be expected in light of this prior art. The technical problem is therefore the provision of compounds possessing an unexpected property over the CNS-active compounds of D1. In the description it is stated that the claimed salts do not lead to the weight loss problems known to be associated with the hydrochloride salts specifically disclosed in D1. Insofar as the claimed compounds do indeed lack the undesired side-effect of weight loss, an inventive step may be recognised, as this improvement would not have been predictable from D1.

Claims 1-33 fulfil the requirements of Article 33(3) PCT.

Industrial applicability

Claims 1-24 fulfil the requirements of Article 33(4) PCT.

No unified criteria exist in the PCT Contracting States for assessing whether present claims 25-33 are industrially applicable. The patentability can be dependent upon the formulation of the claims. For example, the EPO does not consider claims to the use of a compound in medical treatment to be industrially applicable, but allows claims to a known compound for first use in medical treatment and the use of such a compound for the manufacture of a medicament
